

This is about Cell Phone use while we are in the air. I am a Flight Attendant and am very concerned about this. We have enough to worry about in the air then having to worry about people using there Cell Phones. I really think this is a bad idea and should not happen. People can go an hour or two without their phone. Its not going to kill them. And they have the use of AirPhone on some planes already and if its that important then they can use these. I really feel this is going to cause many problems that we don't see yet. What about the Pax who don't want to sit next to someone who is talking on their phone for the whole flight. What about the rude person who is going to talk loud during the entire flight. What about those that wont listen to the commands of FA because they are talking on their phones. Just somethings to think about before passing this new law.
